1. There was continual intensive flying with Yak fighters over the Omsk (54°58'N/73°22'E) airfield, Omsk Oblast.
2. An airport, on which no details were known, was near the town.
3. The airfield was 3 km northwest of the Molotov Tank Plant. Twelve large hangars were there. The field was occupied by about 40 fighters and 40 bombers.
4. PWs who were employed at the field said that new twin-engine bombers were test-flown there. The planes had double rudder assemblies; full-view cockpit; five flexible machine guns, one in cockpit, one in machine gun mount on top of fuselage, one on each side of fuselage and one in belly turret; and two cannon in the wings. The planes were said to be heavily armored.
